

Eden Pitre
Haylea Potts
Bailey Prewitt
Bradon Prewitt
Matthew Prieskorn
Keosha Pruitt
Peyton Quillin

Adam Quinn
Michelle Racine
Nicholas Radomski
Kaveone Ragland
Matthew Rain
Michael Ramsey
Starrdaya Randle

Troy Randleston
Shelby Reed

Cameron Reedy
Deidrick Reeves

Keidrick Reeves
Dallas Rekow

Marcos Revilla
Mya Riles

Marqualon Roach
Laquavion Roberson

Brandon Roberts
Deandre Robins

Rico Roby
Angel Rodriguez

Jose Rodriguez
Juana Rodriguez
Castula Rodriguez-Rosales
Addison Rogers
Jamey Rogers
Zion Rogers
Jenifer Rosas Labrada

Gilberto Rosas
Jose Rosas
Maria Rosas
Deavyon Ross
Decorian Ross
Jillian Ross
Dylan Rowlee

bae
an acronym meaning: "before anyone else"
"Most of the time I refer to food as bae because I love food."
Olivia Blann, 12

salty
being angry, agitated, or upset about something or someone

turn up used to describe being wild and crazy with your friends; also known as turnt up

fam derived from the word "family" that refers to people who are close to you
"My fam is usually the guys or girls I see everyday including my siblings, specifically the ones who I'm closest to."
Eric Sutton, 10

slay
meaning killed it, succeeded in something amazing.
"Slay is another word for fleek. You're either on fleek or slaying. I'm always slaying even on my worst days, it's nothing really."
Jonnajah Isaiah, 9

basic something that's uninteresting, boring or not unique kilt

meaning that something is so funny that they were dying with laughter; killed

gucci
a way of saying something is cool, awesome, or good; comes from the fashion label Gucci

dry
something that's very boring

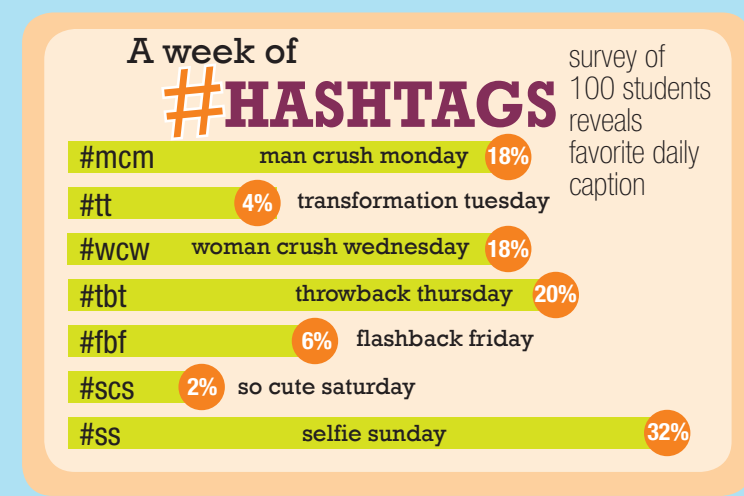

ratchet
unappealing; not putting time into your appearance which results in a lack of outfit coherence

yeet
used to express excitement

YAS
extreme satisfaction or approval with something said or done by another

on point/fleek
something that looks good

squad
a group of individuals that usually hangout with each other
"Instead of calling out like 5 different people, I can say squad."
Cade Thompson, 10

mmm what'cha say?

Slang terms become large part of students' everyday conversations

From hearing new words to saying new words, it seemed like slang terms were ever-changing. However, some caught on quicker than others, like "turn up."

"I say turn up for no reason at all, just at random times," sophomore Ellie Mohon said. "I'll be hanging out with my friends and when we decide to do something, I just say turn up." Dry, squad and yeet were also popular.

"Squad consists of me, Kip Williams, Kyrian Williams, Cade Thompson, Colton Russell, Nick Kelly, JT Morgan, Wesley Sorenson and Kyle Choate," junior Colby Gillespie said. "We all go to the volleyball games, football games and basketball games, and those of us who don't play baseball support the ones who do." People thought 'fleek' would never fade. "I say fleek, because I'm always on fleek," senior Malik Gales said. "It's just been adopted into my everyday vocabulary, for example, 'yo outfit's on FLEEK.'" Using these slang words is a way that defined the year.

"Our generation has a universal bond through the language we use," sophomore Anna Cannon said, "and slang is one of the ways we connect with each other."