

perspectives

divergent opinions and views on timely subjects, visualized

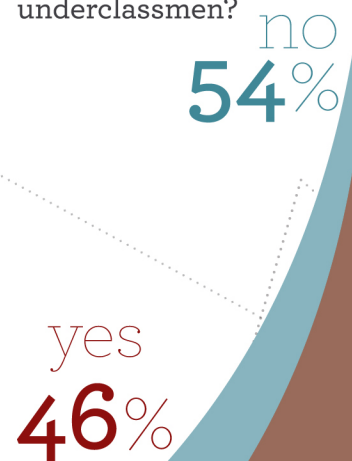

do you trust politicians?

should 2-year community college be free for everyone?

do you agree with the endorsement system for underclassmen?

does playing trivia crack make you smart?

no!

"If it were to make you smarter, it wouldn't give you a time limit. It would give you time to search the questions so you actually know the answer."

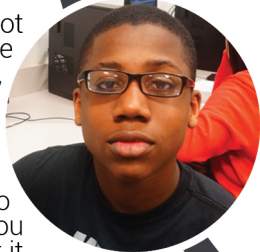

— Sophia Phan⁰⁹

yes!

"Trivia Crack is not gonna prepare you for the SATs, definitely. But, [here's] the thing about Trivia Crack, even if you didn't know [the answer to a question], and you guessed and got it right, you see it and might remember it for a time when it might come up [again]. Trivia Crack is very convenient. It's just a bunch of trivial knowledge—things that don't really matter, but it will still make you a little more knowledgeable."

— Odera Udolisa¹⁰

no!

"A lot of the questions that are asked on there are things that I don't know, so it's kind of informative. I like how I actually learn, because it gets interactive and competitive with friends, which pushes you to get smarter and play better."

— Kelci Taylor¹¹

are american students geographically ignorant?

yes!

"We're really stuck to electronics, phones, laptops, iPads, and stuff like that. We don't go out anymore. When we do have World History, we don't really want to do the work; we don't really care about history or the world around us."

— Ashley Duncan¹¹

yes!

"I guess it just depends on the student. Most of the students generally care about America only. They don't focus on other countries. But, then again, there are some students that actually care about other countries and try to do something about it."

— Karin Huynh¹²

Photo courtesy: Christiaan Triebert

what are the most important challenges facing the world?

inequality

46%

Photo courtesy: Loavesofbread

climate change

29%

Photo courtesy: NASA

world hunger

15%

Photo courtesy: USAID

global conflict

10%