Students celebrate spring activities at the second pep rally

Every year, a fall pep rally is held to get the students excited for fall sports. This year, however, the school decided to hold an additional pep rally in the spring.

For sixth graders, this was their second experience at a middle school pep rally.

Sixth grader Mary Budd enjoyed watching the dancers the most.

"I liked how they did big kicks and were in sync," Budd said.

Sixth grader Liam Spencer liked the energy of the pep rally.

"I would just add a little bit more music," Spencer said.

Students in seventh and eighth grade liked having the extra pep rally this year because they got to hang out with friends and help support spring sports teams.

Tiger Dancer Megan Ferguson liked getting a chance to show off what she learned.

"I liked performing in front of the whole school," Ferguson said.

Eighth grader Steven Rolan thinks the pep rallies were very different from last year.

"There were a lot more people, and it got really loud," Rolan said.

Many students won't forget their middle school pep rally experiences. Eighth grader Conner Brodeen and sixth grader Keegan Hardy share some of their best memories from the celebrations.

"My favorite memory was in sixth grade, I remember getting so excited about the sports," Brodeen said.

"I liked them mentioning the names of the players. I also loved the band and cheer," Hardy said.
