5. TYING THINGS UP with her speech presentation, freshman Valeria Estupinan teaches her class how to make bracelets. "I wanted

ELECTIVE CLASSES KEEP STUDENTS ON THEIR FEET & OUT OF THEIR SEATS

THIS HAPPENED

She could hear the whispers.

Brooke Riggs stood along the Mardi Gras parade route in Shreveport, holding her Child Development baby. Her weeklong assignment: feed, diaper, and comfort the computerized baby.

"I could hear people whispering things about how I was too young, how I shouldn't bring a baby here and things like that," Brooke said. "I laughed but it made me think even more about the assignment of taking care of a child."

AND THEN THIS

A knock at the door.

"Can we have Ed?" A few minutes later, sophomore Ed Kilgore leaves Chemistry and walks around the corner to Computer Science.

'We always went to get him when we had a problem," sophomore James Tuttlebee said. "He basically knows how to do almost everything." Everything meant writing programs to work cal-

Ben Northam knew the routine to get ready for a

"Jedd [Ramos] and I walked in and the judge was gone for about 15 minutes," Ben said. "He came back with an entire plate of chicken wings and ate them during the whole round." Page by Hannah Rainer culators, make games, or run servers. "I've really worked hard in that class," Ed said. "I to look stuff up when I don't know it." SO DID THIS

Junior Deja Brewster took a class at the college to learn how to cook, but it wasn't as easy as just following the recipe. "We could cook whatever we wanted and I made lemon chicken and broccoli," she said. "I burned the pan and my teacher ended up spitting it out."

AND THIS TOO

After months of debate tournaments, sophomore debate. What wasn't usual was for the judge to go missing

School Pleasant Grove High School Job # 1614

Special Instructions 88

Even Page

FOR PLANT USE

©2011 Herff Jones, Inc., All Rights Reserved Proof

WICS6901L

WORK ORDER

Place

Con HJT QPP

Prep Juneane