

Hey band!

Hey what?

Tiger Band members' forte is having fun

During the Christmas concert, Mrs. Morrison signaled the band to pause, but Jacob Cummings, 12th, continued to play.

"Jacob, it's not your solo yet!" Emily Price, 11th, yelled as she hopped out of her chair. The elementary students giggled at the intentional mistake. The song, after all, was "The Thirteen Days of Christmas."

This amusing moment was just one example of all the fun that band members had.

When the Tigers scored a touchdown during the third quarter of the Riesel game, most band members were at the concession stand. Not many people were present to play, so they sang instead. Kind of.

"We sang the notes of our parts," Kimberlee Wuthrich, 11th, said. "I think it sounded awesome. It was really cool to hear it sung instead of played."

On another Friday night, when it came time to meet and greet the Rosebud-Lott band, Tiger band members exercised their sense of humor.

At the end of the third quarter, most bands play an introduction game called, "Hey band! Hey what?"

"The other band director wouldn't let us bring people back to our side," Rachel Byrd 11th said. "So I introduced Alyssa to our band as DeQuann that owns a tattoo shop and plays the toot-a-li-toot."

This year, Halloween was on a Friday night and Mrs. Morrison let the band dress up. Triana Candelas, 8th, decided to dress up as a hotdog.

"It was different than wearing the usual uniform," Triana said. "It was cold and the hotdog suit kept me warm."

There was one thing that members were serious about—the music. During marching season, the band received an over-all first division at Giddings.

Story by Emily Price

