

Page designed by LeAnn Cao (11)

POINT IT

Kyle Lail (11) donated $10 to the Habitat for Humanity fund despite not wearing any clothes required for payment on the Christmas wear day; he was compelled to help the organization.

David Hiney (11)

out

building UP HUMANITY

Society pursues annual Youth Build

by LeAnn Cao

The rattles of the roofing nails, the clash of the power tools breaking the silent focus among the work crew, the students grabbing their dusty, white hard hats, National Honor Society was readying for the plight of a productive day.

"The whole school helped us raise funds for this year's youth build, $3200," senior Madison Jennings said.

When NHS members rolled up to the Youth Build Feb. 14 and Feb. 21, the members took charge at the construction sites organized by Habitat for Humanity.

Divided up in groups, the Society collaborated with Wylie High's NHS. Together, the participants aided the hefty construction crew and became a part of a "dream come true" for families in need.

"The build brought us all closer together and being able to do that while helping others is a blessing," Kayla Corley (11) said.

From painting wooden planks to caulking wall frames, the generous souls of the Youth Build participants provided for many fortunate citizens, one house at a time.

"We all aim to help at least one family build a future for a prosperous and successful life," Riley Freeman (11) said.

- Hancock Signing up for events, LeAnn Cao (11) attends a mandatory meet Feb. 5.
- Build up Lee Rayburn (12) and Marah Townzen (12) participate in the Youth Build hosted by Habitat for Humanity.
- Line formation Forming a conga line, students put on their Winter Wonderland Dance Dec. 12.
- Center stage Engaging in the Induction Nov. 17, Joahanna Olivas (11) receives her certificate.
- Groovy group Pairing up at the Winter Dance Dec. 12, Gregory Beruman (12) and Jacob Zaborsky (12) show off their moves.
- Plan up Looking at agendas, Payton Millis (11) evaluates upcoming events.
- Tutor table Preparing for tutorials, Marah Townzen (12) shares her designated subject.

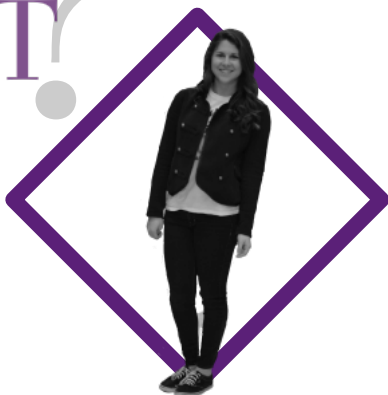

Between the lines

Stacking used boards at the Youth Build Feb. 14, Kayla Corley (11) makes sure the building site is clear of scraps.

TRIM LINE TRIM LINE

get the POINT?

Brooke Vincent (12)

In NHS you get the opportunity to help others in and out of school.

Isabella Maisch (11)

NHS allows you to learn off the books, like working with people and helping the community.

Jeanine Saygi (11)

You get to participate in higher level service projects that benefit others.

Customer is allowed to have objects outside of the margin.