A rich tapestry of stories.

People just don't get it. And we can't explain it. It's who we are and who we will always be. A rich tapestry of stories connects to our past. Dressing up like Santa to collect gifts, discussing a Flannery O'Connor short story around a Harkness table, having alumni interrupt class to visit with a favorite teacher and picking right up where they left off. It's those little things that become the biggest of things – things we cherish and pass on to future generations. But tradition isn't built overnight. It's forged over time. A continuation of something old, something timeless.
