THIS AND THAT

AT THE HEIGHT OF SPIRIT
 During a Friday "Meet at the Mustang," Brenda Piñon and fellow Mare-ettes dance to a band cadence in front of students. "We decided to stand on the stairs, so we could form a 'U'," Piñon said. "I was a little nervous because I'm clumsy and didn't want to fall." "Meet at the Mustang" began eighth period with the band playing through the halls and ended at the school's main hall where the gold Mustang is located. (photo by adrian gil l)

Your mind is everywhere right now. This and that.
 As teenagers, we deal with a lot.
 Relationships and work.
 Stress and college applications.
 Procrastinating and studying.
 Did you get to school at 8:45 and leave at 3:50 or did you get here at 7 for morning workouts and leave four hours after the bell rang?
 Were you a part of the early college or did you choose the traditional 26 credit route?
 You've learned early on that life is packed full of decision making.
 You've had to make some hard choices.

Ands, ors, buts, nots.

It's not always fun.
 Parties or homework.
 Athletics or academics.
 Staying up or sleeping.
 As you go through this book, you'll see a year filled with this and thats.

THIS is where it starts.

Twitter and Facebook. Snapchat and Pinterest. It's something you can't live without. New stores and restaurants. Variety and entertainment. El Pasoans flood the new mall. Athletics or academics. Patches and stitching. A jacket that lets everyone know what you do. One Direction and 5 Seconds of Summer. A concert that broke the record. Adoption and family. Different cultures and backgrounds. All members are linked with love. Backpacks or purses. Lanyards and IDs. Necessities you take to school every day. Brazil to Mexico. Argentina and England. All around the world in two hours. Singing and dancing. Fire and lights. One memorable gathering. Editing and games. Halo and Minecraft. 26,000 views on his YouTube channel. Used or new. Engines and repairs. There's a story behind the wheels.

'15 AND PROUD
 Spirit is loud and clear as Mariah Mendoza cheers on her class during a pep rally. "It was during a class competition," Mendoza said. "If we were loud enough, we would get the spirit stick for the week. We also wanted to show that we could win. I was a little scared being on Elias' [Licerio] shoulders, but we were the only class that came up with the idea." (photo by annabeth burges)

STUDENT LIFE

You've been waiting for high school to start. Now, you can't wait to graduate.
 Early college and finding your way. Fresh faces and attitudes. Nerves were high, but it got better.
 Learner's permits and responsibility. Sweet 16 or quinceañera. You're starting to find your place.
 First car and college trips. Class ranks and gpa. It's time to start planning your life.
 Patched letterman or class ring. Cap and gown. Being an adult is just around the corner.
 Life is about choices. It's time to start making some.

PEOPLE

FLOATING DREAMS

Justin Jameson and classmates release balloons during the senior sunrise at Ponder Park. "I actually had two balloons," Jameson said. "My serious goal was to become an environmental lawyer. The other one was to become Batman. I didn't mind waking up early. Plus, I got to do stand up comedy." A note containing goals was attached to every balloon. (photo by annabeth burgess)

Off-season goals and on the field reality. Heartbreaking losses and surprising wins. Seasons defined. Evenly matched and just as skilled. Sets, blocks, and kills. Pressure at the net. Traditions broken and veteran coach leaves. Singles and doubles. Competition served. Long distance and endurance. Three miles and on pace. All in a day's race. Making weight and winning matches. Pins and cradles. Girl power at state. Legs and laps. Early mornings and cold water. Fourteen swim to regionals. Free throws and three-pointers. Titles and trophies. Domination on the court. Cleats and shin splints. Corners and penalty kicks. Teams with goals. Eighteen holes and tee times. Fall and spring seasons. Chipping away at the opponent. Shot put and long jump. Personal records and staying ahead. Seconds count. Hit and run. Metal and maple. Defending the district title. Ladies and diamonds. Ponytails and home safe. Sophomores dominate. Flyers and close calls. Support and precision. Spirit in the air.

SPORTS

PUMPED UP
 Varsity volleyball co-captain Olivia Zubia and her teammates share high fives with coaches. "We do this before every home game," Zubia said. "I love this tradition because it gives me even more confidence before I go out and play. It also shows a sign of respect to the coaches and my team. I thank them for everything they have taught me."

Early college and school trips. STAAR testing in the Spring and projects all year long. Touching the community and planning for the campus. Leadership and painting. Promoting pride. Harmony and music sheets. Near death experiences and garage sales. One simple note. New staffers and national awards. Interviews and photo opps. Preserving school history. Full brass section and more members. In tune and on-the-road workshop. A whole new look. Desert mapping and inspections. Aiming for promotions and honoring veterans. Military mentality. Bows and rosin. A new director and new uniforms. Taking note of competitions. Memorizing lines and keeping their cool. Endless rehearsals and stage jitters. Staying in character.

DRILL SKILLS

Concentrating on producing an accurate hole, freshman Kiesen Snowfleet works on a wooden CO2 car in his Engineering Concepts class. "The first car I made broke in half in my backpack, so I had to glue it back together using special glue," he said. "We raced the cars the next day, and I was concerned that the wood glue made mine heavier." (photo by genesis barraza)

Waiting for the year to end and planning for the summer. Finals and vacations. You're almost there. Childhood and high school. Baby pictures and memories. Flashbacks that bring smiles. Headlines and deadlines. Pop tarts and late nights. It was our book, but now it's yours. Names and group shots. Photos and stories. You're here and there. Stop a moment and take it all in. No, you can't. Keep going. You have to figure it out.

'COLD' PLAY
Snowflakes all around, seniors Eliana Carmona and Vanessa Ramos have fun catching a couple outside the science wing, Jan. 22. "We enjoyed the snow," Carmona said. "I love cold weather and made sure to drink a lot of hot chocolate." Despite a four inch accumulation in some parts of the city, the school district did not call off school or issue a delayed opening. (photo by annabeth burgess)

BY A NOSE

Told to stay still, senior Daniel Garcia volunteers to be the mold for a mask as seniors Jonathan and Joshua Garcia take the steps to create his facial likeness in AP Art IV. "We had to use plaster strips," Jonathan said. "I used some fabrics and paint to decorate it so it would look like a Venetian Jester mask. We tried something new with every project. It made it interesting and fun." It took Jonathan three weeks to complete the mask. (photo by genesis barazza)

The year is over, and you had a lot of choices in front of you.
 Did you make the right decision?
 Right or wrong.
 Yes or no.
 You own them.
 You stuck it out or you quit.
 You ditched or you passed.
 You chose texting all night over homework.
 You spent your money on concert tickets instead of gas.
 You stayed out late and paid the consequences.
 You had to get a job to help Mom out.
 You had to cram all night writing college essays.
 You made friends and enemies.
 You experienced heartache.
 You triumphed.
 You found this.
 And that.
 Or both. And...

THAT

is what happened.

"I've had to make some tough choices in my life, but I hope I made them for the best."
