

bubbling back to basics

by catherine carter

"I prefer doing a lab instead of just learning about the subject because I learn more from labs, and I have fun while doing them."
-James Woody [10]

photo by kate martinez

photo by rich deshmutk

photo by julia olson

photo by julia olson

out with the old, in with the NOW

by sophia gonzalez

Construction continued around campus as the new school year began. The students and faculty awaited the arrival of a new gym arena, a new addition to the field house, and an extension to the cafeteria. As the construction progressed, the parking lots changed and the students and faculty adjusted accordingly.

setting the [stage]

by catherine carter

photo by marisa villanueva

work never stops

"When I signed up for Tech Theatre I didn't know what we would be building, but we have been working every day to create the sets for the play."
-Brandon Johnston [11]

photo by marisa villanueva

drilling for drama

"Recently we have been working on the sets for the upcoming musical. We have built a lot of the set, but we have more to do."
-Clayton Jones [10]

photo by marisa villanueva

hardwork perks

"The best part about building a piece of the set is when it is finished and you can see the final product."
-Thomas Johnson [10]

getting tech [friendly]

by marisa villanueva

photo by shelby pate

"The addition of VPN (virtual private network) to the iPads makes me sad because I can't keep up with my Netflix shows anymore."
-Brady Payan [12]

photo by kate hohfeler

"I like using technology to turn schoolwork in because I always forget when things are due, so it's nice to be able to see due dates."
-Harmantpreet Bhandal [10]

rainy recognition

by jenna waters

photo by maggie hohfeler

The 2013-2014 Secondary Teacher of the Year, Jodie Deinhammer, was recognized on the football field during half time at the rainy home game vs. Eastern Christian Maryland with Superintendent Dr. Mike Waldrip and Elementary Teacher of the Year, Tarrin Garrison. "The rain was funny because the administration said they didn't want us to get wet, but we didn't mind it," Deinhammer said. District Teacher of the Year was chosen from 14 nominees who had to meet with a panel of education professionals. "It was an honor, especially since there are so many wonderful teachers in the district," Deinhammer said.

pregame [par]ty

by marielle medina

Kicking off the season with a hole in one, the golf team hosted their annual dinner before the football game. The evening consisted of Mexican food, raffles, silent auctions, and sweet treats. The golf team planned the event as a way to raise money to fund traveling tournaments. "It's just a great way to see the amount of support the golf program has from the community," senior Payton Cupstid said.

1. Payton Cupstid [12] 2. Belle Tan [11]

photo by lainey berlin

photo by maggie hohfeler