T.V. TALK

Pride for Television viewers to see, members of the cheer squads yell in to the Channel 9 camera for their Friday night high school football show. The squad had to recite the NC Overtime Theme, "We watch 'NC Overtime' all the time."

YES TO ANOTHER BASKET

Front row seats in the main gym, seniors Benjamin Vega, Christopher Costick, Frank Portillo, and Christian Hernandez raise their "Yes" signs to encourage the girls' basketball team. "It was a last minute idea," Costick said. "We met in the student council room and painted ESPN on the table to take to the game. This new tradition made us realize that we should have been doing it all throughout the year for all of the campus sports."

H&M opens a second store Dec. 18 in El Paso. Located at Cielo Vista Mall, less than a mile from campus, the Swedish clothing store is two floors and measures 29,000 square feet.

MUSICAL DIVAS

Juniors Danny Madrid, Juan Grimaldo, Darius Rosales-Streeter, and Tyler Grijalva portray members of Destiny's Child during a class lip sync competition. "I chose to portray Beyonce," Rosales-Streeter said. "We picked the roles because we knew it would make people laugh. During the performance, I was really embarrassed, but it was worth it."

HERO MODE

The campus' first blood drive, senior Alyssa Armendariz anticipates the pain of the needle. "It was my first time donating blood," she said. "I'm afraid of needles, I just didn't want to see my blood come out, but my friends convinced me to donate. They said it could save a life." Students donated
