

Grid Iron Girls

Powderpuff Football

On October 9, the powder puff game was held to raise money to defray the cost of the senior class float.

In a typical powder puff game, girls show the guys that they can mix it up on the grid iron in a non-contact football game while guys sign-up as cheerleaders to root for the team.

This year, many female students signed up and attended practices. Several male students signed up to cheerlead, however, none attended practices or the game so there were no cheerleaders.

Due to an uneven number of class members signing up, a draft was held and players were divided between head coaches Zackary Taylor (White Team) and Jayton Rodriguez (Purple Team).

Coach Rodriguez's purple team beat Coach Taylor's white team 14-10.

Cole Parker

Head Coach Zack Taylor (12) provides strategy for the next play.

Julie Marshall charges across the field on the pursuit.

Bethany Martinez (12) squares up to the line.

Rachel Mendoza (10) surveys the field for receivers.

Alyssa Newlin (11) sports a menacing game face.

Purple team celebrates their victory.

Kaelan Savala (9) rushes towards the ball.

Zephen Queves, (9) grimaces as her flag is pulled which stopped the play.

Chase Dehoyos (12) delivers an encouraging speech to his team.

Things get a bit heated on the field when two powerful and competitive teams collide.

Dacie Taylor tries to shake a determine flag puller.

Madison Childress (11) weaves around the other players as she runs the field with the ball.