

Paul Abrell Trainer, Denise Aguilar Math Dept. Chair, CIT, Donna Allan Registrar, Leticia Alvarez Custodian, Louie Alvidrez Campus Patrol, Louis Alvidrez Science, CIT

Jaime Amezaga Asst. Football Coach, Ramon Arana Theatre, UIL Coach, Jose Luis Arredondo Math, Victor Arriola Spec. Ed., Hamid Assadian Science, UIL Coach, Alex Austin English

Marcus Bagley Asst. Football Coach, Lisa Barnett Social Studies, Hector Barraza Social Studies, Angelica Barron Counselor, Robert Barrueta Math, Richard Bruns Counselor

Emma Butler Dance, Mikki Butler Parental Engagement, Noah Carrasco Technology, Hector Carrillo Campus Patrol, Consuelo Castañon Para. Spec. Ed., Genaveva Cobos Para. Spec. Ed.

BAKE SHOP

The menu includes pancakes in junior Xena Gomeztagle's Special Ed. class as her teacher Daniel Correa helps her mix eggs, flour and milk. Gomeztagle and her classmates get to enjoy their creations which also included cupcakes and waffles.

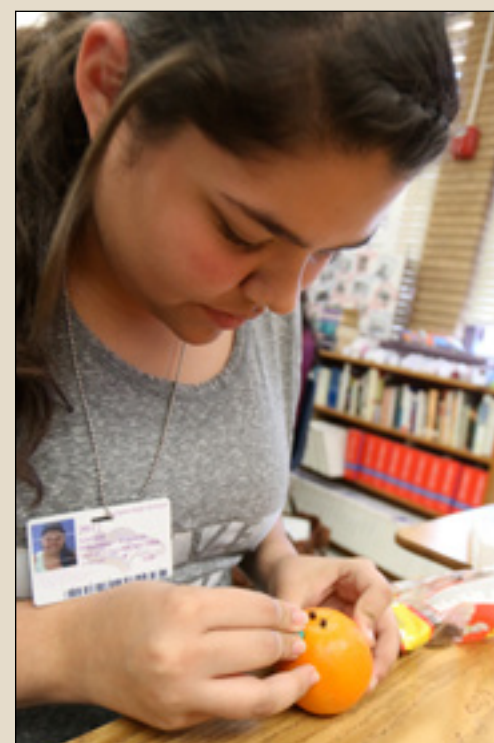

genesis barraza

ANIMAL MAGNETISM

Seniors Emmanuel Ramirez, Jessika Davis, and Tyler Grijalva dissect a cat in Anatomy class. "The concept is to understand all the components, muscles, and tissues a cat has, since it's similar to a human body," Ramirez said. "Initially I was scared, but after a while, I got used to it and found that I actually really enjoy dissections." (photo victoria brown)

genesis barraza

genesis barraza

COMMON 'SCENTS'

Concentrating on making a perfect spiral in an orange, French III student Alejandra Esquivel uses cloves, not just to decorate, but create a room deodorizer. "The cloves create a great scent," Esquivel said. "Assignments like this are interesting because I get to experience French culture. It's more in depth than other foreign language classes." The orange and cloves is known as a pomander, which was worn around the neck to ward off infection in the Middle Ages.

VIOLENCE NOT THE ANSWER

Power in words, junior Mary Marquez and sophomore Jose Molina create a domestic violence poster in Health. "It's a serious topic," Marquez said. "Going over this taught me to be a voice to others who may be going through this."

TAKE NOTE

Finger placement correct, sophomore Angel Muñoz listens to his version of "Silent Night" in Piano I. This was Muñoz's first attempt to learn to play an instrument.

SPECIAL THANKS

Thrilled to receive a proclamation honoring the school's 60th anniversary, principal Dr. Randall Woods thanks City Council for recognizing the campus. The proclamation was made during homecoming week, Oct. 12-17.

genesis barraza

genesis barraza

genesis barraza

I laughed after it happened

teacher talk

"I saw a student down the hallway with something white on his ear. I assumed it was an ear piece. Of course, I chased him down to make him remove it. As I got closer, I told him to follow the rules and to not use technology on campus. Turns out it was a bandage. The student just had surgery a few days before. My response to him was 'I'm so sorry. Thank you for following the rules, and I pray you get better.'"

-maria guardian-science-18 years on campus

"I was sitting in my car before the school day began. I got myself a morning soda from Sonic and poured vanilla syrup into my drink. A Burges parent saw me do this and mistook it for alcohol. She ended up getting my license plate and reported me to Dr. [Randall] Woods. I had no idea until the end of the day when he pulled me out of class to discuss the incident. I ended up calling the parent and explained everything to her. I couldn't believe it."

-debi covington-food science-16 years on campus

"It was in the middle of class, and my students were completing their assignment for the day. One of my students had a giant duffle bag packed with his baseball equipment. As I was passing by him, my foot got caught in the strap of the bag. I fell flat on my face. My students laughed at me. As I got up, I told them all, 'Guys. First you ask if I'm okay, and then you laugh.' I taught them a valuable lesson that day."

-dawn maloney-d.i./test coordinator-17 years on campus

