INK?

Then you would have missed junior Nakina Levingston whipping under a disco ball in the locker room before the varsity volleyball game.

And senior Kirklan Capps crying at the senior breakfast before her last first day of high school-and all the snapchat stories posted of her.

Maybe even juniors Ben Northam and Lucas Marchesani hiding mini plastic horses all around Mr. Baldwin's class.

And you might not have seen junior Blaise Olson sprinting out of the art room into the indoor, dodging the camera during the lip dub.

And Mrs. Lott's sophomores flipping her posters upside down before class every day.

Or sophomore Ze Benson dancing in Mr. Woodson's class, and lunch, and the volleyball games, and, well, everywhere else.

And you might not have seen senior Faith Lipham showing Mrs. Shirley how to "hit the quan" during English class.

And you probably didn't see Mr. Kirk standing on his head for dollar bills after a dare from senior David Zuniga.

Whether it's during lunch, in the hall, or in the parking lot before school, there's always something going on that you might miss.

Blink. Senior Jackson Kennedy Blink. Freshman Avery Jenson finds a live bat outside Mrs. Shirley's tapes the bus windows shut blocking the rain on the way to a soccer game. classroom.

Blink. Mrs. Abston's world map falls off the wall, landing on sophomore Ben Legrand's head.

Blink. Mrs. Watson tells her physics class a "knock-knock" joke before teaching the lesson.

_	Г
HJ	HJ	Job #	1614	School
Template	Template	Special Instructions
WICS6901L ©2011 Herff Jones, Inc., All Rights Reserved	WICS6901R ©2011 Herff Jones, Inc., All Rights Reserved
		Black Ink		Includes S

Stop, collaborate, and listen

After junior Aubrey Maynard took the aux cord and blared "Ice Ice Baby" to show off her rapping skills, assistant principal Brandi Eldridge rapped along with her. They turned the pancake breakfast into a rap battle.

8 2

Even

Page Black Ink

Job # 1614

Special Instru

Includes Spot Color(s)

Process 4-Color (CMYK)

You probably missed Mrs. McInnis soaking junior Bryce Wilson with her water bottle as he hid under his desk during college algebra.

Blink, and you might miss it.

Blink. Juniors Celeigh Redden and Khadijah Oritola share a Snickers bar on the bench during a basketball game.

28,800 blinks a day. More than IO million times a year. With IO percent of our waking hours spent with our eyes shut, it's easy to miss something.

So don't blink.

Pleasant Grove HS

Spot Color(s)

Process 4-Color (CMYK)

D LINE BLEED LINE

BLINKFN

Then you must have missed

Shannon Lee saw it all from her seat in the grass behind the tennis courts. Well, almost all. She couldn't see every thing.

That was how it was throughout the year. We participated. We cheered. We learned. We watched from the stage, the stands, and the sidelines.

But the year was packed with so many moments, that if you blinked once or twice, you might have missed something.

That's what we're here for. We caught those moments you didn't really notice or think twice about.

Like when the tennis team made a pit stop at McDonald's before every tournament. Or when the bus driver watched every match and became the team's biggest supporter.

When you blinked, we didn't.

lhen you were blindsided BY A<sup>J</sup>LOT OF AND

From the side lines, freshman Alana Avard watched the white cloud hover over the stadium.

But she couldn't see everything through the baby powder. That was how it was during the fall.

We held pinkies at football games. We danced to "Monkey Beat" at pep rallies. We painted each other's faces.

But there were so many things to do that if you blinked once or twice, you might have missed something.

Like when the cheer leaders ran to Walmart before the game to stock up on baby powder.

Or when the parents in the stands evacuated the stadium to avoid the dust that covered their hair, clothes, and concession stand popcorn.

When you blinked, we didn't.

lhen you must have missed POM<sup>POMS</sup>

From the student Day. We got tired section, sophomore from standing Carson Cox screams "Hawk Nation." He was screaming, but he couldn't see the action on the court through the signs, pom-poms, and Fat Heads.

That was what it was like in the middle of the school year.

We hung paper snow flakes in the halls in 80 degree weather. We piled into the gym dressed in red and blue on Veteran's at "Stack the Stands" and every other basketball game.

There were so many things going on that it was easy to miss something.

Like when the student section "dabbed" after every free throw. Or when the faces of every basketball player floated on Fat Heads in the student section.

When you blinked, we didn't.

			Т
8	Job # 1614 School Pleasant Grove HS		HJ	HJ	Job #	1614	School
4	Special Instructions		Template	Template	Special Instructions
Even			WICS6901L ©2011 Herff Jones, Inc., All Rights Reserved	WICS6901R ©2011 Herff Jones, Inc., All Rights Reserved
Page [	Black Ink Includes Spot Color(s)	Process 4-Color (CMYK)			Black Ink		Includes

Inen uou must

With her face plastered in whipped cream, senior Addyson Hill squints as senior Libby Blair wipes away the mess.

But Addyson couldn't see who was right in front of blinked. her at Spring Fling through all the whipped cream.

That was how it was at the end of the year.

We bowled with teachers. We camped out in hammocks and tents in the parking blinked, we didn't.

lot. We cleaned out our backpacks for the summer.

Sometimes we were blind to the things that happened right before our eyes. All because we Like when the senior boys lined up to be pelted with pies at Spring Fling.

Or when Coach Jason Boston took a dip in the dunking booth.

When you

Pleasant Grove HS

