"I took my water bottle with me when I went hiking this summer around Austin and Colorado. I consider it essential because it allowed me to stay fresh and keep having fun and enjoy the hike. My favorite water botth has stickers of places I have traveled on it, like Estes Park, Colorado and Concan, Texas."

"Acclimating [to Guatemala] and getting used to the culture was difficult. Having to live in an orphanage for seven weeks was especially different. One of the highlights of the mission trip was being a part of a drama team that helped portray wordless expressions of the Bible. The aggest lesson I learned on this trip was to always have a servant's heart."

"When we were waiting in line to go up the Empire State Building, I was listening to Clutch with my headphones. Whenever I get bored or I just feel like listening to music, I just plop my headphones in and listen."

"I took my selfie stick with me to Disneyland and near the Walk of Fame in Los Angeles, California. I didn't really use it much, or at all, because inside Disneyland, they're not allowed. It was pretty disappointing becaus that was the whole reason I brought it to take pictures.

'I went to Switzerland and Italy for my senior trip. My mom went to Italy when I was little, and I was so upset that I made her promise to ake me one day. We've been saving money for two years. We visited the first World Girl Scout Headquarters in Switzerland and hiked in the Swiss Alps. In Venice, we did the gondola ride, and it was fun bing down the streets of Venice with a funny guy in a striped shirt."

"I was in Belgium for about a week by myself. I got to experience traveling there by myself, so that was fun. I went and saw traditional Belgium towns, and I went to Bruges, which was really cool with the roads and the canals. I got to go to the Belgium seaside and got to see the coastal area and tourist-y things. You have to speak Dutch when you're there, so I had to use a translator. The only thing I was ever able to say was 'hello' because I was really bad at Dutch. My favorite part was the moment when I walked out and saw my friend for the first time in five years." -ROXY MOTA (11), BELGIUM

"Every year my family takes a trip to somewhere colder to escape the heat- somewhere to relax with a nice view. I stayed in Anchorage from late June to July with my mom, dad and older sister. My favorite part was going hiking a couple times because you could look out and see the snow and the large forests that covered the area.

over the summer for about six weeks with my family. My avorite part [of the trip] was hiking down the cliffs into a tide pool because it was fun to swim in. One night, the sky was really clear and you could see the stars better than you can here. It was really cool, and we could even see parts of the Milky Way."
